Elephant Park

Written by Melanie Koster

Illustrated by Jenny Cooper

"That's very kind of you," said the elephant. She groaned and her bones clicked and creaked as she stretched her stiff legs. She slipped out from under the ladder onto the cool grass.

It wasn't far to Noah's house, which was just as well.

"Hello, old friend!" Dad said to the elephant. "You look very tired indeed. What you need is a nice cup of tea and a lie down."

Dad helped Noah make a space for the elephant to rest. The old grey elephant lay in the shade of the pear tree and went to sleep.

Generations of children have played on the trusty elephant slide in the park. But now her tusks are broken, her paint is cracked and her bones are weary. Even her pink toenails have lost their shine. Children visiting the park run instead to the shiny new playground equipment.

But Elly the elephant's sad face captures the heart of one little boy, who invites her home with him. And there, Noah discovers that his dad also played on the elephant slide as a boy! Together, they decide to give Elly a makeover.

Age Level: 10+

Dimensions: 198 X 129 MM

A powerful, contemporary teen novel about the courage to be yourself in the face of online and in-school peer pressure, from the co-author of Can You See Me?—perfect for fans of Tamsin Winter, Holly Bourne and Moxie. Fourteen-year-old Eden McCoy doesn't fit in. All she's good at is running, and she doesn't even dare join the track team. Her priority is to stay in the shadows and avoid the Glossies—a ruthless clique of girls who use social media to punish and humiliate their targets, led by their queen Bea and her sidekick Mikki. But one day, Eden breaks her vow to stay unnoticed: she beats track star Mikki in a race. This bold move captures the attention of Bea, who decides Eden needs to either prove her loyalty and become one of the Glossies—or suffer the consequences. And so The Testing begins ... As Eden is challenged to play a cruel prank on another kid or have that same act inflicted on her, her will is pushed to the limit. The only thing keeping her afloat is an unexpected connection with a boy called Riley, a fellow runner who messages her online. But how deep does The Testing run? And how long until Eden breaks?

SALES POINTS:

- Scholastic helped Rebecca carry out a survey of nearly 1000 teenagers around the UK on their feelings about social media, and the results have informed Rebecca's focus in this novel: fear of online impersonation and the lack of adult understanding of social media's benefits.
- Discusses the topics of online and in-person bullying, and the challenges young people (especially girls) can face in school, with an empowering message about being true to yourself and seeking true friends.
- Celebrates the joy of running, exercise and community.

A long time ago, a witch burst into flames. A pirate and a mermaid fell in love. A map was marked with a glowing X. And a Republic was born. In the present day, two girls are given a history assignment: to try and piece together the rise and fall of the famous and corrupt pirate Republic, which once formed their island home. As Reggie and Maeve sift fact from fiction, they realise that everything they've been told about the Republic is wrong. That the problem with history being told by the victors is that a lot gets left out. That ancient legend might be uncomfortably close to home. As their tentative friendship deepens into something more, they realise that a magical world could be on their very doorstep—if only they could find the map ...

A powerful dystopian thriller from a stunning new voice in YA, set in a world divided by race where life itself must be paid for if you want to survive ... Six years ago, seventeen-year-old Mora survived the terrifying Skol invasion. They stole her land. They took her family. And now not even her life is her own. Skol culture revolves around one motto: Life is Golden. You must pay the government for the right to survive. If you can't, you're cast out ... or culled. Records of every citizen are held at the highly-secured Life Registry, which tracks who lives and who dies, who pays and who fails. Colonised survivors face endless servitude, repaying the 'debt' of their years lived before the invasion. Mora is resigned to her fate, finding glimmers of joy in her tentative friendship with another repayer, the handsome, elusive Kit. But then she finds out that twelve-year-old Zako is to be put to death by the dangerous new Skol Governor. Finding the courage to fight back, Mora and Kit conspire to smuggle Zako to safety. But their plan draws them into a dark mystery ... and a heart-pounding mission at the Life Registry itself. They must ask themselves: what are we worth to each other?

SALES POINTS:

- Filled with suspense and a friends-to-lovers romance that crackles with tension, perfect for TikTok and fans of Noughts & Crosses, The Hunger Games and Shatter Me.
- A UK-based author with Guyanese heritage, Sharada Keats is a stunning, unique new voice in YA.
- Explores hope, connection and important topics like colonialism, racism and structures that demand productivity and disenfranchise the poor.
