For every villain, there is a hero ... Turtle isn't one of the heroes he reads about in stories. If he were, he'd use his animus powers to help Pyrrhia—instead of keeping his abilities a secret, even from his own sister. Now that Darkstalker, the sinister and impossibly old dragon from Pyrrhia's most notorious legends, has returned, Turtle knows his own role is simple: hide. And stay hidden. The more he watches Darkstalker from the shadows, the more Turtle knows that someone needs to stop the powerful dragon. A real hero. But Turtle is running out of time to find one, which means ... he might have to try to save the day himself.

Moving-day Thursday

This is the very first page of my special private secret book! And guess where I am writing it?

In my super-amazing new bedroom!

My new room is upstairs.

I am the only person in my whole family who has a bedroom with stairs. Not even my big sister Ella does, and she usually gets any new stuff first. Like clothes. And scooters. And real bikes.

But not this time 😊

Before I could move in to my new room, we had to clear out all the old stuff. Just as well it's school holidays!

Dad wanted to get rid of everything.

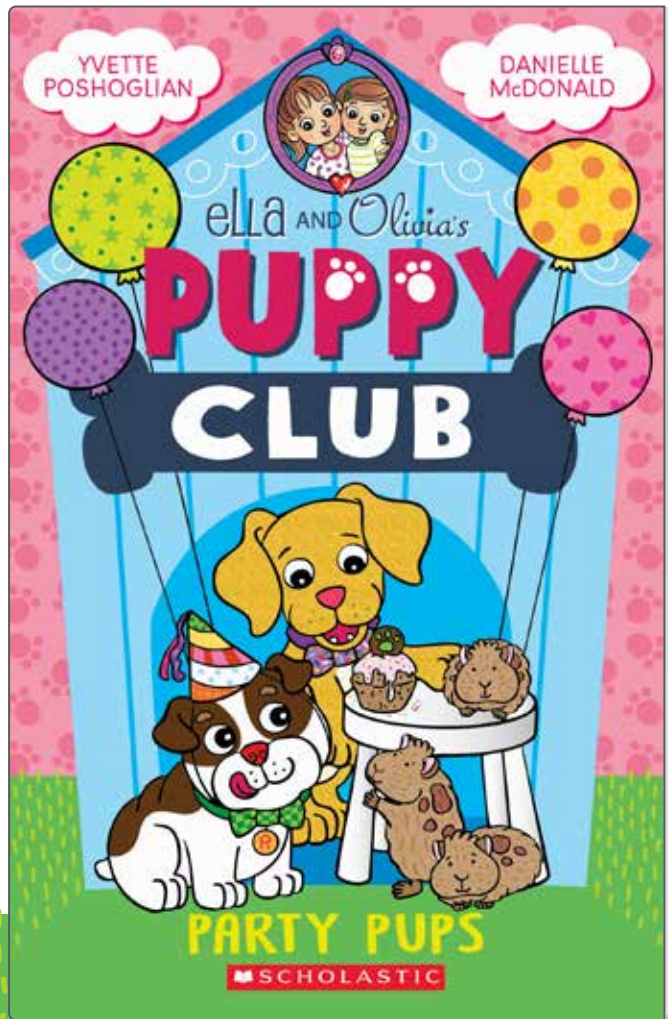

Then we painted some planets and twinkly stars on the ceiling.

A book inspired by Greek mythology and great for fans of Lottie Brooks. Twelve-year-old Meddy Gordon has serious anger issues. She writes a diary about her life, describing her experiences at home and in Year 7 at Shadewell Academy in the twenty-first century. So far, so normal, right? You see, the thing is, Meddy Gordon is not actually from the twenty-first century. She is, in fact, a human from ancient Greece and she has made a powerful enemy. Meddy G is Medusa and she just happens to have angered Athena, the goddess of war. And what happens when the goddess of war is on the warpath? You get a bad day. A very bad day indeed.

KEY SELLING POINTS:

- A hilarious and highly illustrated diary format book.
- Great for less confident and reluctant readers and those who want something similar to other diary format books in the market.
- Draws on characters from Greek mythology, that readers will be learning about in school, in a funny and engaging way.

So when her father unexpectedly falls ill in the middle of a critical acquisition, she is determined to see it through. There's just one hitch: the family company in question is known for its ultra masculine whiskey brand—lead by the dedicated but overworked Shang—will only trust Mulan's father, Fa Zhou, with the future of their business.

Rather than fail the deal and her father, Mulan pretends she's Fa Zhou. Since they've only corresponded over email, how hard could it be to keep things moving in his absence? But will she be able to convince Shang's dubious family that this young woman is the powerful hedge fund CEO they've been negotiating with? And what will happen when she finds it harder and harder to ignore the undeniable spark between her and Shang?

Can she keep her head in the game and make her father proud, or in love with Shang?
