THE EPIC NEW ADVENTURE SERIES FROM BEST-SELLING AUTHOR ANH DO CONTINUES! Twins Noah and Skye split up and continue their dangerous search for answers. As Noah discovers kids held captive aboard a ship, Skye and the dolphins make some new friends of their own. Can they outsmart the soldiers on patrol and uncover new clues to solving the mystery of what happened to their mum?

'A little bit,' I agreed, 'but at least there are coconuts and...' My eyes fell on oysters on rocks nearby. I could already hear Skye complaining about having to eat the slimy boogers.

'Might as well have stayed on the other island,' she grumbled.

I nodded at the dolphins chasing after fish. 'We could ask them to share some of what they catch? Then we could build a fire and—'

'We aren't setting up camp,' said Skye firmly. 'We've been stuck in place for way too long. We gotta move forward.'

She was right. We weren't going to find our mum while toasting fish on a beach. 'I didn't see any sign of civilisation while coming ashore,' I said, 'but I think our best bet is to try and find some. At least then we can work out where we are in relation to Wavesong, and get a starting point for our search.'

'Yep,' she called. 'She knows it all right! 'Chase?' I suggested to Dash.

Dash darted after them, but I wasn't sure if she was listening to me or that was just what she'd wanted to do. That would be the hard part—separating what we were teaching the dolphins from things they wanted to do anyway!

I decided to put it to the test. I hunched down to the dolphin's ear, so she'd know I was clearly speaking to her.

'Slow,' I said. 'Sloooooow.' But we're about to catch them!' chirped Dash.

I stuck my feet out to either side so they dragged in the water. 'Slow,' I repeated. 'Sloooooow.'

Hampered by my efforts, and maybe a bit annoyed with me, Dash finally slowed down. 'Great job!' I said, rubbing her head.

"Um...h!" said Azmina. "I know I look like a dragon, but I'm actually a girl!"

The rainbow dragon puffed multicoloured glitter from her nostrils. "You must be a Dragon Girl, like me," said the dragon. She had a human-sounding voice, only much louder. She also sounded familiar. "You're Azmina, right?"

Azmina stared at her. "How did you know?" To herself, she thought: What is a Dragon Girl?

The rainbow dragon puffed more glitter into the air. "We were told you were coming. We wanted to tell you at school, but we promised to wait."

Azmina felt really confused now. "We? There's more of us?"

"Yes! The third one is—"

Before the rainbow dragon could finish, a whooshing sound filled the air, and another dragon pushed through the shimmering force field, snout first.

35

focused on the mission ahead. Once the sun set, the Shadow Sprites would be even more powerful.

Naomi looked down at the forest below her. She couldn't see any Shadow Sprites right now, but she could definitely see their work. Many trees and flowers were completely grey, and the grass looked like it was dying. She frowned. They just had to stop those sprites from ruining the Magic Forest!

Azmina zoomed up beside her. "Where are we headed?" she asked. "Do you know what the Tree Queen meant by 'aim high'?"

"I figure she meant that we should go to the highest point in the forest," Naomi said. She nodded to the mountain looming in the distance. "I'm thinking we go up there."

Willa flew up on Azmina's other side. "Isn't that a bit...obvious?" she said. "I mean, aren't riddles more complicated than that?"

Naomi felt a little wriggle of doubt inside her, but she pushed it away. "It's only the first part “Everything changes, tamariki mā,” says Grandma.

 “But the stars will always guide us.”

Sam and Te Rerehua adore Te Mata Hāpuku, its wild winds, stony shores, and the treasures the waves push onto the beach. But this Matariki feels different. Pōua is gone and the children miss him deeply. As they wait for the rising of the star cluster, Grandma teaches them about two caring whetū: Pōhutukawa, who watches over loved ones who have died, and Hiwa-i-te-rangi, the star of hopes and wishes.

When a group of mischievous patupaiarehe try to pull Pōhutukawa from the sky to bring Pōua back, Sam, Te Rerehua and Grandma must remind them why the stars must stay where they belong—guiding us, caring for us, and holding our memories in the night sky.

KEY SELLING POINTS:

- Set on the windswept shores of Te Mata Hāpuku, this heartfelt story introduces readers to Pōhutukawa, the star who carries those we have lost, and Hiwa-i-te-rangi, the star of aspirations for the year ahead.
- A gentle tale of grief, remembrance and renewal, as Sam and Te Rerehua learn that those we love never truly leave us—they become stars who shine on.
- Retold in te reo Māori by Ariana Stevens as Ko Ngā Whetū Raupī o Matariki: Ko Pōhutukawa rāua ko Hiwa-i-te-rangi.

But just as it's within her grasp, disaster strikes the coven! Agatha is about to reluctantly save the day when she is rebuffed by the nosy, stuck-up Martha. Sixteen-year-old Ellie McGill has long dreamed of towering mountains, tangled jungles and most of all ... travelling to the incredible South American landmark, Paradise Falls. Ellie thought these dreams made her strange, until she met her sweet best friend Carl. Carl is Ellie's closest confidante. But things between them seem weird lately as Ellie grows increasingly frustrated with his quiet way of doing things. And is it just her, or are there new feelings bubbling up between them? Then Ellie begins her dream internship at the local zoo, where the flashy millionaire owner organises an expedition to Paradise Falls to collect new specimens. But the star newcomer, a bird given to him by Charles Muntz himself, doesn't adjust well to his new home and Ellie is put in charge of its seemingly hopeless recovery. Carl advises Ellie to lay low, to not make waves. But that's not something Ellie has ever been good at. And when an opportunity comes for a last minute, emergency rescue mission, she decides to take it. Will Ellie's impulsiveness finally get the better of her? Or will she get the adventure she always wanted ... and at what cost?
