NEW HANDS-ON TOOLS FOR THE 'DOING' STAGE OF MATHS LEARNING

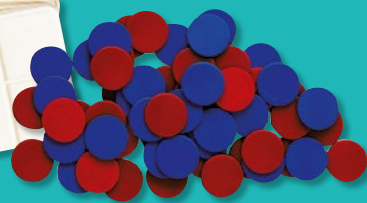

These new maths manipulatives bring the 'doing' stage of learning to life, where understanding is built through hands-on exploration. Students actively test and refine their thinking as they move, sort, and solve with concrete materials.

This tactile engagement strengthens conceptual understanding, bridges the gap between abstract ideas and real-world application, and supports deeper problem-solving. By making learning visible and interactive, these resources empower students to experiment confidently, develop reasoning skills, and build a solid mathematical foundation that lasts.
