THE WRITING TRAITS

TRAIT CRATES

Teaching writing is now even easier with everything you need to help students use the six traits—Ideas, Organisation, Voice, Word Choice, Sentence Fluency and Conventions—to improve their writing! With six all-new mentor texts per grade and 24 time-saving lessons, each Trait Crate Plus makes teaching writing engaging and relevant through lessons and activities that inspire a love of literature and complex literacy thinking for every student.

In addition to the valuable features and components of the original Trait Crates, these enhanced editions offer:

- An emphasis on modes—Narrative, Informational and Opinion—to help you address higher standards
- A companion website that provides access to downloadable pages for students, video interviews with children's authors, and student-friendly scoring guides
- Ruth Culham's best-selling The Writing Thief, that takes a deep dive into the theory and practice of using mentor texts to teach the craft of writing.

Each kit includes:

- Six high-interest picture books hand selected for each trait
- Six teaching guides filled with step-by-step lessons, graphic organisers, a scoring rubric and extension activities
- Six teaching posters (each 432mm x 559mm)
- Colour-coded stickers for organisation
- The Writing Thief, a 216-pp resource with practical activities that incorporate the traits of writing across informational, narrative and argument modes.

THE PROUDEST BLUE

BY IBTIHAJ MUHAMMAD & S. K. ALI, ILLUSTRATED BY HATEM ALY

BEFORE READING

Based on the cover, what do you think this story is about? How do you think it will begin/end? After reading, revisit your answer to this question. Were your predictions correct? Consider the subtitle: 'A Story of Hijab and Family'. What do students already know about wearing hijab? Do they have any questions about it? Make a list of statements and questions the students may have about wearing hijab.

EXPLORING THE TEXT

The first day of wearing hijab is an important moment for Asiya and her family. Does your religion, culture or family have any special traditions that are important to you? What does this tradition mean to you?

"Some people won't understand your hijab... but if you understand who you are, one day they will too." Discuss this quote with the class, and revisit the statements and questions you had about wearing hijab. Have students' understanding of hijab changed? Can the class now answer any of the questions they may have had?

"Don't carry around the hurtful words that others say. Drop them. They belong only to those that said them." What do you think this statement means? How are Asiya and Faizah affected by hurtful words in the story? Use this quote to have a class discussion about the powerful effect words can have on others. What is your understanding of prejudice? What are the dangers of making judgements about people based on race, gender, age, sexuality, etc. rather than understanding that every person is different? How is prejudice shown in The Proudest Blue?

What policies does your school have in place regarding bullying, racism and prejudice? Can you add to or improve these policies? What should you do if you witness a student or teacher demonstrating bullying, racist or prejudiced behaviour?

EXPLORING THE ILLUSTRATIONS

Examine several of the spreads and have a class discussion about the following:

- What is the composition (i.e. where are the key elements placed)? Are the characters large or small? In the foreground or background? Do they seem powerful or weak; happy or sad; scared or confident?
- What are the characters on this page doing and where are they looking? Why are they doing this? What effect does this have?
- Is the illustration framed or does it take up the whole page? Why do you think Hatem Aly illustrated it this way?
- Do the colours change from spread to spread? Make a list of the colours used in each area (this is called the colour palette). Why do you think he chose these colour palettes?

Asiya, Faizah and their friends are in colour and illustrated in detail, but the bullies are not. Why do you think the illustrator made this choice? How does it affect you as a reader? Have a wider discussion about how bullying is presented in The Proudest Blue, including how Asiya and her friends react to the bullies.

Consider the spreads where Faizah is describing her sister's hijab. How are they similar or different to other spreads in the book? You could consider the text, the colours, and the size of the characters. Why do you think they've been presented in this way? How does it make you feel?

FURTHER ACTIVITIES

Faizah goes through a range of emotions in the story. Look at each spread and discuss how she may be feeling, and how you can tell using clues from the text and illustrations. For each emotion, ask students to consider when they have experienced a similar emotion and how it made them feel.

Family is an important theme in The Proudest Blue. Ask students to write a short piece about a family member they feel close to and share it with the class. Read the author notes from Ibtihaj Muhammad and S. K. Ali. How did they make you feel? Did they inspire or encourage you? Research Ibtihaj Muhammad and make a fact sheet about her achievements.

EUREKA! A STORY OF THE GOLDFIELDS

WRITTEN AND ILLUSTRATED BY MARK WILSON

LIFE ON THE GOLDFIELDS IN 1850S AUSTRALIA

Life on the goldfields was very hard. People lived in tents, and had little money for food, or with which to pay the hefty licence fees demanded. Research their lives and the challenges they faced. Mark Wilson tells us in an afterword that this story is inspired by the life of Catherine Martin and her descendants. Research her life and that of other people on the goldfields.

Images in the book show Molly and Chen panning for gold and then using a 'cradle' that made the process more efficient. Research the various methods of finding gold. How did life change in towns like Ballarat before and after the gold rush?

From what countries did people come to the goldfields, and how did they get there?

What effect did the gold rush have on Indigenous people in the area?

THE EUREKA STOCKADE AND THE HISTORY OF TRADE UNIONS IN AUSTRALIA

This rebellion was a seminal event in Australian economic and social history. Research to discover the impact it had on later history. Peter Lalor was a key figure in the rebellion. Research his later life. Why has he become such a symbol of this movement? The Eureka Centre in Ballarat commemorates the rebellion. Visit their website: www.ballarat.vic.gov.au/city/facilities-and-venues/eureka-centre to discover more about this history.

Examine the battle scene incorporating the newspaper clipping headed 'Rebellion!' What does it suggest about the struggle between miners and those in power?

The Eureka Flag is a symbol of the movement to protect workers' rights. In 2018, the Australian Building and Construction Commission (ABCC) sought to have the flying of the flag banned on worksites but the Fair Work Commission ruled this invalid. What were the arguments for and against the flag being flown?

CHINESE IMMIGRANTS AND RACISM IN 1850S AUSTRALIA

Many Chinese people arrived in Australia in this period and worked hard to establish themselves. Why did people of European origin resent them so much?

Research the treatment of Chinese people in this time, and how that resulted in the Immigration Restriction Act 1901 which was introduced immediately after Federation.

How might the marriage between Molly and Chen have been regarded during this time? Would they have experienced racism?

VALUES

Discuss the values conveyed in this text. Chen is kind to Molly and her father, despite the fact that people have treated him poorly because he is Chinese. How difficult is it to forgive, and to be kind to people when you have been subject to unkindness?

ENGLISH LANGUAGE AND LITERACY

This text is written in first person, past tense, and in the voice of Molly. How might the story have been told if Chen had written it?

Write a letter as if penned by Chen to his mother and sister at home in China.

VISUAL LITERACY

The front and back endpapers portray the moment before the battle commences between miners, soldiers and police. How is the drama of this moment conveyed in the illustration?

The medium or style employed for many of the illustrations is photo-realism in acrylic painting on canvas. Invite students to use various techniques to create their own images of Molly and Chen panning for gold.

What effect does the photo-realism of many of the illustrations convey to a reader?

CREATIVE ARTS

Create a classroom mural which tells the story in a series of dramatic frames designed and executed by students.

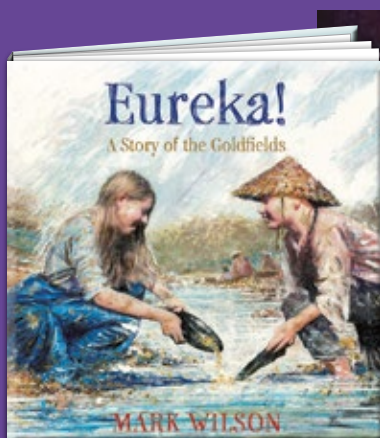

Write, direct and act out a scene based on any incident in this book.

Design a Book Trailer based on this book. Visit sites such as: www.insideadog.com.au/teachers/book-trailers for advice.

ONE AUSTRALIAN SCHOOL'S RESPONSE TO THE DROUGHT

JOHN SOUTHON, Principal at Trundle Central School in Central West NSW, writes: Farming practices, especially the increase in mechanisation and corporate farming, has resulted in a decline in Trundle's population, school enrolment and local businesses. Vacant shops are a feature in most towns in the region, a sign of both former prosperity and troubled times.

The drought has not caused rural decline and the movement to larger centres as reported widely in the media. This national disaster has placed another layer of complexity across rural towns and farming families.

The choice for schools is to either sit back and hide behind the statement 'our core business is the classroom,' or try to make a difference. Drought is not an economic and farming problem alone, it is a human problem. The catalyst for my passion to help within the community is the fundamental right of every student in this country to have equal opportunity. Rural decline and drought is robbing children of opportunity.

The school's response to the drought has been to look at the fundamentals that every family needs, as well as those things that maintain our mental health. The deep relaxation of warm water flowing over your head after a long day—or the ability to have clean clothes.

This current drought is robbing our farming families of these fundamentals. At Trundle Central School we installed showers which are available to the community at any time, free washing machines, and delivered hundreds of pamper packs to our farming women. These packs contain perfume, moisturiser, scented soaps and much more. A little piece of normality during this national disaster.

In addition to this, the school has delivered over 500 food packages and in excess of 8 tonnes of bottled water. Also, through fund raising, the school has injected over $90,000 into the local economy through vouchers issued to farming families that can only be spent in our businesses. Unfortunately our efforts to help save our remaining food shop have been in vain, with the shop shutting in November. This means locals have to drive to Parkes or Forbes—a 130 km round trip—for groceries.

The maintenance of mental health is vital during these difficult times. The school has irrigated, through purchased water, approximately 100 square metres of lawn at the front of the school. This is to show students that we can still have something green and alive despite these crisis times. This strategy has met with some criticism because of the cost, and the amount of water required during 38 degree days is extensive. However, I believe the benefit for positive mental health far outweighs the cost.

There are times when I have been outspoken in my views about how our school has felt isolated. But sometimes it helps to speak up and we recently had both State and Federal Ministers visit. A year 3 boy asked the Deputy Prime Minister 'does anyone care for us?'. As Principal of the school I often ask this question. It is very hard for city and coastal people to understand the complexities of living in the grip of drought, and they can't know.

This little school will continue to try to be a physical and emotional oasis for our students and hopefully, when the drought breaks, the linkages developed with other schools and organisations will give us the building blocks for future prosperity.

PROBLEM SOLVING & MEASUREMENT

Eddie Woo is the head mathematics teacher at Cherrybrook Technology High School, Sydney. He has been teaching maths for more than ten years. In 2012, Eddie started recording his lessons and uploading them to YouTube, creating 'Wootube'. Since then, he has amassed a following of more than 270,000 subscribers and his videos have been viewed more than 14 million times. In 2018, Eddie was named Australia's Local Hero of the Year and shortlisted as one of the top ten teachers in the world.

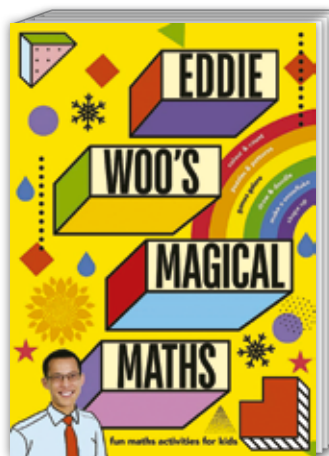

911. Woo's Wonderful World of Maths

Maths is all about patterns, and our universe is extraordinarily patterned. With enthusiasm, humour and heart, Eddie Woo shows how card tricks, conspiracy theories, teacups, killer butterflies, music, lightning and so much more illuminate the spellbinding world of maths that surrounds us.

Eddie Woo. Pan Macmillan Australia. Softcover. 368 pp. Middle/Upper Primary and Secondary.

912. Eddie Woo's Magical Maths

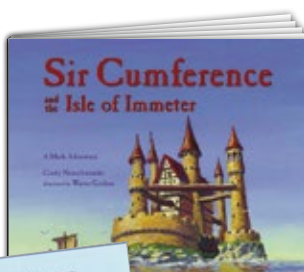

A bumper book of fun with maths, stuffed with things to draw, puzzle, invent, order, unscramble, code and decode—from Australia's best-known maths man! There's magic in maths—if you know where to look...

Eddie Woo. Pan Macmillan Australia. Softcover. 240 pp. Middle/Upper Primary and Secondary.

SIR CUMFERENCE MATHS ADVENTURES

A series of entertaining, clever and imaginative medieval fantasy tales set in a world full of fun geometry-based names (Sir Cumference, his wife Lady Di of Ameter, son Radius, the Dragon of Pi and many more). Puns—both literal and visual—abound as readers follow hysterical adventures, discovering new maths concepts along the way. A great way to introduce key maths terms.

913. Sir Cumference Maths Adventures
Cindy Neuschwander. Penguin Books. 4 full-colour softcovers, each 32 pp. Primary.
